

When Georgists Meet

THE annual banquet of the Henry George School will be held on June 5th at the Seventh Regiment Armory, 643 Park Avenue, New York. The dinner charge will be $6.

A three-pronged agenda promises a full evening to be presided over smartly by Lancaster M. Greene, Vice President of the HGS. Dr. Cecyle Neidle of Twayne Publishers will announce a new book on Henry George by Edward J. Rose; Raymond Moley will introduce a new edition of Rebel, Priest and Prophet; and The Henry George News, confessing its age, 25, hopes for honorable mention.

Annual HGS Conference

Florida is The Place with a character all its own, and to visit its alluring Miami Beach after "the season" is to experience it at its best. July 3rd to 7th inclusive will be the rendezvous date for Georgists at the Barcelona Hotel. On the Fourth of July there will be three conference meetings. At one of these, in the evening, Robert Clancy will speak on "Life, Liberty and . . ." After that the incoming tide will be pounding on the beach and for those who are wistful and young it could be a holiday to remember.

On the fifth there will be a pleasurable excursion and a Latin American evening. Saturday culminates in a banquet with two Miami newspaper editors as speakers: Don C. Shoemaker and William Baggs. Sunday morning will find some loathe to leave, others hard to find — for some it will be farewell until next year, others will be saying "see you in Wales in September."

Henry George International

Now it can be told. If 25 or more persons sign for a round trip flight to London from New York, say from August 25th to September 15th, the plane fare could be $300 or less. This would allow two weeks prior to the international conference for independent travel. Within that interval those who understand German will want to visit the three-day conference in St. Gallen, Switzerland, September 4th to 6th inclusive. But reservations for this must be made soon through Ilse Harder, HGS, 50 East 69th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021.

All those lovely summer plans lead to the appointment in Wales, at rugged, scenic Caswell Bay. It is there that our London hosts have found the ideal place to hold the International Conference for Land Value Taxation and Free Trade, from September 7th to 14th. For the traveler who likes to shun the well-worn tourist routes, this will be the experience of a lifetime. And since no one knows what's ahead, why not invest now in a Georgist safari that combines good company with intellectual exercise?

When you write to the Henry George School, 50 East 69th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021, to reserve your round-trip flight at the low incentive cost of $300 or less, please enclose a deposit of $10, just to show your serious intention.

The president of the International Correspondence Schools in Scranton, Pennsylvania, Dr. John C. Villaume, wrote recently to the HGS as follows: "I attended a Board of Directors Meeting of our local Chamber of Commerce today, and heard discussed at some length the Henry George philosophy of economics. This whetted my interest tremendously. I think I have too long neglected a study of your material. Can you please advise what information you need in order to enroll me as a student?"

You may be sure he was promptly enrolled.
